

A day in the life: Accounts and Business Advisory (ABA)

Chloe Pan, Associate

My role is varied and hands-on. Core tasks include bookkeeping, preparing cashflow statements, management accounts, VAT returns, and year-end accounts. I also support company secretarial work, such as updating Companies House records and submitting annual confirmation statements for clients.

A significant part of the job also involves managing deadlines - each client has different timelines and deliverables, so it's important to stay organised and help client managers keep projects moving efficiently.

One of the most exciting parts of the job is the clients we work with. I've supported businesses across multiple sectors - including start-up technology companies, financial services, farming, and even the music industry. Each client is at different stages in their business journey, which gives me exposure to a wide range of accounting needs and business challenges.

Being part of ABA offers the chance to develop both technical accounting knowledge and commercial awareness, which is a strong foundation for any accounting career.
